Letter from Jerusalem

Biblical Foods:

I was talking with my personal trainer who told me of some more interesting details of her mother-in-law's work. Previously, I had written that there is a restaurant in Tel-Aviv which served foods found in the Bible once a week.

Dr. Tova Dikshtein was their consultant. Recently, some of her work includes bringing her foods and giving a demonstration regularly at the Migdal Daveed museum in Jerusalem's Old City. She has researched grain that was thought to be "chametz" and her research showed this isn't so. She has planted an amazing botanical garden and placed within it a large calendar in a park called Neot Kedumim. There, visitors can see the specific plants that bloom at a specific month of the year. One can see the plants referred to in the Mishna, the Gemorah and the Bible. Actually, many non-Jews visit to learn of the plants which were mentioned in the time of Jesus. The Neot Kedumim Park, located not far from Lod, is the only place in the world which has plants and trees relating to Jewish history.

Israel holds an annual Bible Quiz and the contestants as well as professors and rabbis are among those that come to hear Dr. Dikshtein's lectures. It was inspiring to hear how our People of the Book are so eager to learn about the foods and their ingredients which are part of our Torah and our other Holy books.

A Personal Update:

My book is now being sold by the Book Depository, as well as by Amazon. It is also available in the Jewish Book store in Milwaukee and the Temple Israel gift shop in West Lafayette, Indiana.

In addition, my local English speaking chapter of Emunah, a women's organization which supports educational institutions here, has chosen me to be their honoree of the year. My orchestra has performed for the group with great success on a number of occasions. I hope, in the future, to describe the ceremony that should take place in February,

The Talk of the Town:

Thank G-d it is not of missiles and rockets, but of snow. Unlike the last big snow fall, schools were closed in time, main transportation arteries were blocked off early in the day, and just about every activity, store, concert hall, etc. is cancelled. Basically, the whole city shuts down..... I am best off hibernating at home. B:H I feel safe and content.

With Warm Regards,

Cyrelle

Projects and Collections:

Indiana Jewish History Printed Materials Collection, 1958–2002. M 0929. Three manuscript boxes. Collection guide online. The Indiana Jewish Historical Society was founded in 1972. The organization is headquartered in Fort Wayne, however it holds events throughout the state. IJHS's mission is to collect, preserve and publish information on the 250 years of Jewish Life in Indiana. IJHS is the only organization in the state which focuses exclusively on the entire Hoosier Jewish experience. The Indiana Jewish Historical Society's archive collection at the Indiana Historical Society in Indianapolis contains more than 7,000 items of Jewish interest and the society continues to seek materials for the collection.

The Indiana Jewish Post & Opinion Collection, 1943–2000. BV 3738–3779. Forty-two bound volumes. No collection guide available. In 1930, Gabriel Cohen (1908–2007) began publishing a Kentucky version of The Jewish Post & Opinion, founding the Indiana Edition in 1933. The National Jewish Post & Opinion premiered in 1948. The Indiana edition has gone by multiple titles: The Jewish Post: A Journal for Indiana Jewry, The National Jewish Post: Indiana Edition and The Indiana Jewish Post & Opinion, which is still in publication today. This collection includes 42 bound volumes of archived issues of The Jewish Post: A Journal for Indiana Jewry (1943–46, 1948), The National Jewish Post: Indiana Edition (1950, 1953–56, 1960–61, 1964–65, 1968–69), and The Indiana Jewish Post & Opinion (1970, 1973–75, 1978–97, 1999–2000).

The Jewish Experience Oral History Project, 1994–1996. M 0894. One manuscript box. Collection guide online. Between 1994 and 1996, as part of The Jewish Experience Oral History Project, 18 Jewish men and women whose families had emigrated from Europe during the early 20th century were interviewed. All 18 settled in the Michiana region of South Bend and Mishawaka. The project was sponsored by the Michiana Jewish Historical Society. The interviewees discussed how their families adjusted to their new lives in the United States. This collection contains 18 oral history interview transcriptions and related papers (1994–96).

The Wabash Jewish Experience Monograph, 2007. SC 2889. One manuscript folder. No collection guide available. A monograph written by Ronald L. Woodward titled “The Wabash Jewish Experience.” It was given as a handout to accompany a program and walking tour presented by Woodward at the Indiana Jewish Historical Society 2007 spring meeting held at the Honeywell Center in Wabash on April 22. Woodward’s talk followed the program closely. The monograph is stored in one legal-sized manuscript folder.

What They Said: Oral Histories from Jewish Citizens Around the State Transcription, 1974–1981. SC 2815. Seven manuscript folders. Collection guide online. Longtime Jewish residents from Muncie, Ligonier, Evansville, Lafayette, South Bend, Gary, Kokomo, and Crawfordsville were interviewed individually and collectively through a focus group. The interviews took place between 1974 and 1975, although several transcripts are not dated. The panel discussion took place in Muncie in 1981. Interviewees discussed anti-Semitism, KKK influence in their town, growing up, temple and synagogue life. The project was funded through an Indiana Heritage Research Grant through the Indiana Historical Society. Seven typed transcripts of six individual interviews done in 1974 and 1975, and one panel discussion conducted in 1981 make up the collection. Each transcription is in a legal size manuscript folder.
