The Jewish Connection

The Jewish Connection is a community-wide book discussion group that meets monthly.

The next meeting will be hosted by Florence Weingram at her home, 1619 Sheridan Road, West Lafayette, on Wednesday, May 24 at 2:30 p.m.

The book selection for May is Moonglow, by Michael Chabon. This latest novel by Chabon chronicles conversations with his family, particularly his mother and his dying grandfather. Michiko Kakutani, a New York Times critic, says that "Mr. Chabon weaves these knotted-together tales together into a tapestry that's as complicated, beautiful and flawed as an antique carpet... (and) ... it is never less than compelling when it sticks to the tale of Mike's grandparents — these damaged survivors of World War II who bequeath to their family a legacy of endurance, and an understanding of the magic powers of storytelling to provide both solace and transcendence."

It is not necessary to have read the book to attend. For additional information, please call Florence Weingram at 463-5956.

The Jewish Scientist who Discovered the Magic of THC

"In the early 1960's, a Bulgarian-born scientist named Raphael Mechoulam was caught carrying 5 kilograms of, as he called it, "superb, smuggled Lebanese hashish" on a bus from Tel Aviv to Rehovot. But, he wasn't planning on smoking the stuff – or even making potzah brei.

"Mecholaum was a young researcher beginning to explore the science behind cannabis, a plant whose medical properties were not yet known.

"Mecholaum, now 86, is still a researcher at Hebrew University in Jerusalem, and credited with isolating THC – the main psychoactive component of marijuana. This has gone on to become the keystone of medical marijuana, which is used for a variety of ailments, from nausea to nerve system pain."

With thanks to Gabe Friedman who writes for "Jewniverse."
